Attorney General Says Law Does Not Affect Clerical Work-Question One For Courts to Determine.

Attorney General Marcus H, Holcomb has given an opinion to Factory Inspector George L. McLean in regard to the hours of employment of minors and women in which he says that in his opinion the new law does not apply to those women or minors engaged in cierical work. In his opinion he says:

Says:
Section 2 makes restrictions as to employment of minors under 16 years and women laboring in any mercantile establishment.

Waldo E. Clarke, a nephew of Milo M. Clarke, of Westerly, married in East Haven on Christmas day Miss Dalsy Loutse Klinck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Klinck, of New London. Mr. Clarke is superintendent of bridge construction for the Changuinola railway, with residence at Bocas del Toro, Panama. After a brief wedding trip in New York state, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will leave for Panama. In the proviscions of sald statute relating there of the labor in the labor is all of a clerical nature, and where the workers is not required to be constantly on his feet. The statute doesn't attempt to include all those employed in any corporation, firm or individual carrying on any manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishments, and the proviscions of sald statute relating thereto leads me to the conclusion that the general assembly had in mind and that the act only pertains to those who labor in the manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile departments of the conclusion that the general assembly had in mind and that the act only pertains to those who labor in the manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile departments of the conclusion o who labor in the manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile departments of such establishments, and has no reference to the employes in the clerical work incident to such enterprises. The clerical force in such establishments would frequently not be 1 per cent. of the employes, while in many industries all of the employes are engaged in clerical work, and whose employment is not restricted or regulated by any statute.

ployment is not restricted or regulated by any statute.

Of course the question of the application of this statute is one for the courts to determine, but so far as it is proper for me to advise you with reference to your official action I say to you that in my opininon this statute does not refer to and include in its provisions employes in offices engaged in cierical work, although such work pertains to that carried on in manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishments. Rural Optimist.

The pessimistical tourist found the freekled farm boy sitting on the turnstile twanging a penny jewsharp, says The Chicago News. Granite council, No. 177, Royal Arcanum, in thirty-first annual session, elected these officers: John M. Donohue, regent; William Mackenzie, vice regent; Neil Mackenzie, orator; F. Lee Gavitt, past regent; Archie C. Thompson, secretary; Albert E. Barber, collecter; John C. Loughead, treasurer; Silas E. Lewis, chaplain; Ethan P. Gavitt, guide; Winthrop W. Barber, yarden; Thomas McSparren, sentry; F. Lee Gavitt, representative to grand lodge; Winthrop W. Barber, alternate; Harry S. James, Winthrop W. Barber, Frank W. Coy, trustees. "You needn't be so all-fired happy," warned the tourist, as he slowed up his horse. "Do you know what the almanac predicts?"
"No, indeed, mister," drawled the lad, pausing in his tune. "Dad only has one almanac, and he won't let me see that."

Joseph Arch, who has just reached his $3d year is the man who achieved the marvelous feat of fully organizing the agricultural laborers of England. He began his career by frightening birds off the crop at 4d a day. At that time tea was 7s a pound and sugar too dear to sweeten it with. The average wage among the laborers was 12s a week; they asked for 16s, and Arch got it for them. In a few months the members of the national agricultural laborers' union numbered 50,000, and ultimately Arch was returned to parliament as one of the ploturned to parliament as one of the pio
